

No shows halt bus record bid

AN attempt to break the world record for most people on a bus was called off because not enough people showed up.

The Big Lemon was staging the world record attempt at the University of Sussex in Falmer yesterday.

They needed 230 people to break the record but only about 50 people showed up.

The current world record for people crammed into a single-deck bus is 229.

Yesterday a spokesman for the Big Lemon said they had not given up.

He said they hope to try again next year and are looking to stage the attempt at a big city event where more people will be available.

He said: "We didn't have enough people on the day. But we are not going to give up. We are looking to get 250 people and try to tie it in with a big event in Brighton."
