

ROLLING Stones guitarist Ronnie Wood (pictured) a keen artist – currently exhibiting his canvases at Brighton's J'Adore Art Gallery – says he listens to Mozart as he paints, because music 'is so inspiring and relaxing'. He adds, in an interview with Sussex Life magazine: 'Being an artist and a Stone are the complete antithesis of each other but they are both really creative processes.' As they say late at night in drinking clubs frequented by actors, 'Get you, dear!
